BUSINESS TIPS FROM A WOMAN

Chicago, March 25.—While some women may palpitate with joy over the latest divorce scandal, dig deep into the lovelorn columns of the newspapers and pore long and often over the women's page, Miss Lilly M. Hansen, Chicago's only woman bank cashier, passes up this brand of "trifling light reading," feverishly scans the stock and market reports, devours every word on the daily financial page and "gets more fun out of watching the stocks jump up and down."

In ten years Miss Hansen has come up from stenographer to one of the chief executives of the Kimbell State bank, with full charge of the office and full responsibility for all the bank's securities.

Here are a few of the tips Miss Hansen volunteers for the girl who wishes to be a success in business:

Never lose your temper. Be courteous to everybody. Swallow your pride when rudely reminded that you are holding down a man's job. Never get angry. And when your judgment is questioned by a man, smile sweetly but say nothing.

FIRST TO SUGGEST LEAGUE

C. C. Allen of Atlanta, Ga., Claims the Honor for Presenting Plan of Society of Nations.

Atlanta, Ga., March 26.—C. C. Allen, a pattern maker in a local foundry, claims the honor of first suggesting the plan of a League of Nations. His plan was printed in a St. Petersburg paper and copies sent to President Wilson, Henry Ford, former President W. H. Taft, members of the House and Senate and others.

President Wilson and other statesmen acknowledged receipt of the suggestion and many expressed their approval of the plan.

Mr. Allen says there had been no newspaper discussion of the league prior to the plan mailed out, but soon afterward many leading papers took the proposition up, and most of them gave him credit for proposing the league. He points out that the constitution of the League of Nations follows the line of his proposal for an international government, which included an international constitutional convention, each nation determining its own delegates; noninterference of the international government in the internal affairs of a nation unless it is unable to sustain a stable government; all matters arising between nations that can not be settled by the international code of laws by diplomatic means to be referred to the international congress and its decision to be final.

The suggestion also included a plan for an international army and navy to enforce the decisions of the league, and the abandonment of all forts and means of offense and defense by the individual powers.

Miss Helen Dragoo received a big box of oranges and other fruit this morning from California, a gift from her grandmother, Mrs. A. J. Strong, who is spending the winter out there.

THE "BANK" HOT BROKE

A Little Hazy About the "Dinners and Things" But Remembers the Pretty French Girls.

Th following interesting letter telling of a visit to the famous Monte Carlo has been received by Mrs. W. P. Cummins from her brother Corp. P. L. Growney, with a motor transport corps in France:

ADV. M. T. C. PARK NO. 721, A. P. O. 721. February 19, 1919.

Dearest Sis:

I am on late duty again. If it were not for this night work, I don't know when I'd get my letters written. We have started playing indoor baseball at night, in a big aeroplane hangar and when you figure three nights a week for that and one night for going downtown and getting a feed, there isn't a lot of extra time left. I have time to write during the day but have found it impossible to write a letter when there are so many people buzzing around me.

Have been getting the Democrat-Forum regularly of late and enjoy it very much. I see that Joe Archer claims he isn't dead.

Returned last Saturday evening from my trip to Monacco and am back on the job again. It was almost like joining the army all over again. It was cold and rainy when we left Dijon, almost a sleet, and when we arrived in Monacca the following afternoon, there was a nice, warm sun, and flowers and palms, and ripe oranges, 'neverything. We got off the train and walked into the waiting arms of an M. P. I started back for the train, but he was a good fellow and only wanted to show us to our hotel. Get that? Our hotel! Big airy, clean rooms, overlooking the Casino Gardens and the Mediterranean. Four of us, all from Portland, were traveling together, and managed to get rooms in the same wing on the same floor. After we had shaved and washed (Say, it looked funny to see water running out of a faucet again) they took us down to the dining room. I'm rather hazy about that dinner but I remember two nice looking French girls kept taking away my plates and bringing me clean ones again. I was eating some cutlets and the girls were smiling and I said "Encore," and she brought me some more cutlets. That word is the most sensible thing the French say and the one that almost every soldier knows and uses. After we were settled in our hotel, the M. P. left us alone and for one week I forget that I was a soldier except when I looked at my uniform. One morning we would get up early (that is 7:00) and go off sight-seeing, and the next morning, we would sleep till 11:45. We took a good many pictures and will send you some when I have more printed. Our traveling limit was from Nice to the Italian border and we went the limit both way. We went out on hikes on several occasions and took in lots of interest there was an old deserted city on top of the mountain so we started out to of the mountain so we started out see it. I don't know who built that town up there. It must have been some jealous old crab with a pretty wife or some of the exclusive society people who didn't want to have to mingle with common folks. A common person couldn't climb that hill twice a day. I don't know why they deserted it, probably fell off the mountain and didn't have the heart to climb it again. We found lots of other things up there; an

A RAP AT TAX BOARD

LET VALUATIONS ALONE

Jefferson City, March 26.—Senator McKnight of Gentry, took a hard fall oats of office last year it would not the state board of equalization yesterday. He said that they had violated their oaths of office last year when they cut down the assessment of the real estate and personal property of the state some 2 billion dollars.

The thrust at the board was made during a rambling debate over amendments to the income tax bill. Senator Green of Kansas City, had offered an amendment making every income subject to an annual state tax of one per cent. The amendment was doubtless offered for the purpose of killing the bill, as the Kansas City senator had previously failed to have the tax stand where it is today, one-half of one per cent on incomes of $2,000 and more.

In speaking in opposition to the amendment Senator McKnight said that if members of the state board of equalization had not violated their oaths of office last year it wiuld not now be necessary for the legislature to be considering the taxation of small incomes.

"Does the senator from Gentry mean to tell the senate that members of the state board of equalization deliberately violated their oats of office?" asked Senator McCullough of Knox.

"I do," replied Senator McKnight. "I have heard," he continued, "that three members of the board expect to run for office next year. I hope they will be forced to run on the records they have made. The returns of the assessors of this year's taxes are now in the hands of the state tax commission. I am informed that the total values are approximately what they were last year before the board reduced them some two billion dollars. If the valuations are left alone, there will be ample revenue to meet every demand on the state notwithstanding the loss of about three million dollars of dramshop revenue, and meantime, we need not pass a single revenue producing bill."

No names were mentioned by Senator McKnight. Everyone, however, interpreted his remarks to be aimed at Attorney General McAllister, Secretary of State Sullivan and State Treasurer Middelkamp.

CZECHS INVASION IS ON

London, March 26.—One hundred men were killed in violent street fighting in Budapest, according to Vienna advices. Plots are reported from other Hungarian cities. In the capital Bolshevist mobs overcame the garrison and massacred many, plundering the shops and stores of valuable stocks. Afterward Budapest was isolated and the fate of the Allied mission sent to investigate conditions there is unknown. Czech troops began an invasion of Hungary and occupied Raab, said a Central News dispatch from Vienna today.

DEMOBILIZATION HOPE OF WETS.

Liquor Interests Expect War Time Prohibition to Be Cut Short.

Washington, March 26.—Rapid demobilization of the army and the early return of President Wilson give rise to hopes on the part of some "wets" that war time prohibition can be avoided, or at least cut short. Under the law war time prohibition becomes effective July 1, and continues during demobilization.

The "wets" hope the army will get down to the peace time figure before constitutional prohibition goes into effect next January. The termination of the demobilization period some time this fall would give a few months' interval during which the breweries and saloons of the Nation would have an opportunity to reopen.

TO CHANGE TREATY

WILSON FINDS ORIGINAL PROGRAM IS NOW IMPOSSIBLE

TRYING TO AVOID DELAY

Hurry to Complete General Document to Secure Peace Between the Allies and Al-Central Powers.

Paris, March 26.—Realizing that it is practically impossible to carry the fight for the confirmation of sure treaties with Germany and Austro-Hungary President Wilson is now understood to be working for the completion of the general document to secure peace between the Allies and the all-central powers. Already substantial progress has been made, it is announced. Many questions involve the all-German alliance of nations making it impossible to draw up a treaty which could be subscribed to by the Central powers.

A change in the original draft following the meeting of President Wilson and Premiers Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando, at which confidential reports on the Hungarian situation were submitted. It is officially declared in British and American circles here there is no reason to assume that the change will entail any great delays.

Washington, March 26.—More rapid progress than appears on the surface is being made by the peace conference. This was the message received by executive officers of the White House from a member of the President's party today.

Legislaton embodying this program is being whipped into shape by Senator Townsend and Representative Stevenson who are slated for the respective chairmanships of the senate and house committees.

Funds to meet the April 1 requirements will be advanced to the railroads under federal control by the war finance corporation, the secretary announced today.

Catechism of Proposed League of Nations, Making Clear the Points of the Great World Peace Plan

The following catechism of the Proposed League of Nations is taken from the St. Louis Republic. The plan to enforce world peace is the biggest subject of the day—in fact, the biggest of a generation. It is important that every citizen should be thoroughly familiar with the details of the constitution of the League of Nations. The league constitution itself may not be clear to persons not in the habit of reading instruments of this character, but there is no reason why a person reading the appended catechism should not obtain a fairly good idea of the League of Nations, its plan and its purpose.

Purposes.

Q. What is the proposed League of Nations?

A. An association of self-governing nations, formed to promote international peace.

Q. Is it proposed to create a superstate, or world federation?

A. No; an association deriving its powers and functions from common counsel, resting upon the common judgment of mankind.

Q. How is it proposed to attain its objects?

A. By establishing open, just and honorable relations between nations; by promoting clear understandings of international law as the actual rule of conduct among governments, and by developing a scrupulous respect for all treaty obligations.

Membership.

Q. What steps have been taken to establish such a league?

A. Representatives of fourteen nations, sitting in the preliminary Peace Conference, have subscribed to a covenant which embodies the constitution of the league.

Q. What other nations are to be invited to adhere to the covenant?

A. Neutral nations, qualified for membership, to be named in the protocol to the covenant.

Q. How can other nations be admitted to membership?

A. By the assent of two-thirds of all the nations, members of the league.

Q. What qualifications are necessary?

A. All member states must be self-governing countries, and able to give effective guarantees of their sincere intention to observe international obligations, and accept the principles of the league with reference to naval and military forces and armament.

Organization.

Q. How is the league to be organized?

A. By a body of delegates, in which all members shall have one vote but not more than three representatives; by an Executive Council, comprising representatives of the United States, Great Britain France, Italy and Japan, together with four others, representatives of other states; by establishing permanent commissions, and a permanent court of international justice.

Q. What permanent commissions are to be established?

A. 1—A permanent commission upon armament, and military and naval questions generally.

2—A permanent bureau of labor, to endeavor to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor throughout the world.

3—A commission to receive and examine reports of powers entrusted with trusteeship over territory treated as mandatories.

4—All existing international bureaus such as the International Bureau of the Postal Union, are to be placed under the control of the league.

Armaments.

Q. What principle is to be accepted affecting naval and military forces and armaments?

A. It is proposed that nations joining the league should recognize the principle "that the maintenance of peace will require the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety, and the enforcement by common action of international obligations, having special regard to the geographical situation and circumstances of each state.

Q. How is it proposed that this principle shall become effective?

A. The Executive Council shall determine and recommend for the consideration of each government what military equipment and armament is fair and reasonable in proportion to the scale fixed in the general program of disarmament. Thereupon, each state, acting in its own sovereignty, and according to its own laws, shall consider the recommendations of the Executive Council, and determine how they can be made effective.

Q. It is claimed that the Executive Council has power to compel a nation to adopt the scale of armament agreed on in the world program. Is this correct?

A. The Executive Council can only advise and recommend to the member states such a limit upon armaments as would be proportionate to the rest of the world, in accordance with the scale fixed, taking into consideration national safety, international obligations, geographical situation, etc. Each state would consider these recommendations and adjust its plans in accordance with the will of its own sovereign functionaries. The only obligatory feature of the armament program is to this effect, namely: that if any nation adopts the recommendations of the league as to limited armaments, these armaments cannot be increased in later years, or the proportion changed without the consent of the Executive Council, of which the United States would be one of the five controlling factors.

Q. What great reform does the league propose respecting private manufacture of munitions and implements of war?

A. The Executive Council is to advise as to how the evil effects of private interest in such manufacture can be prevented, looking to the adoption of manufacturing for themselves war materials necessary for their safety.

Q. What other obligations are assumed by members of the league concerning their military and naval programs?

A. All members of the league agree that they will not conceal military and naval information from each other and that there shall be full and frank interchange of advice as to their military and naval programs.

Disputes.

Q. What principles are league members asked to accept with respect to disputes between nations?

A. That disputes shall be thoroughly discussed and that war, as a means of settling disputes, is a matter of concern to the whole league, which will take any action necessary to safeguard the peace of nations. In case a member of the league refuses to submit a dispute to arbitration or inquiry, the Executive Council will propose what shall be done. If any member of the league goes to war contrary to the agreement, it will be deemed to have committed an act of war against all members of the league, which will immediately break off all relations with it. It will be the duty of the Executive Council in such case to recommend what military force the members of the league shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the league. The members of the league agree that they will support one another in the financial and economic measures which may be taken to protect the covenants of the league. Any member of the league which has violated any covenant of the league may be declared to be no longer a member of the league by a vote of the Executive Council concurred in by the delegates representing all the other members of the league.

Q. What is the effect of withdrawal from the league?

A. Withdrawal is not to take effect until two years after the notice of withdrawal is given, and all international obligations and all obligations under the league covenant must be fulfilled at the time of withdrawal.

Q. What is the position of a state which has entered the league after the first group of original members?

A. Any fully self-governing state, dominion or colony not named in the annex may become a member of the league if its admission is agreed to by two-thirds of the states members of the league. Each state admitted to membership must make effective provision for the discharge of all its international obligations, and must accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the league in regard to its military, naval and air forces and armaments.

Q. What is the position of a state which has entered the league after the first group of original members?

A. Any fully self-governing state, dominion or colony not named in the annex may become a member of the league if its admission is agreed to by two-thirds of the states members of the league. Each state admitted to membership must make effective provision for the discharge of all its international obligations, and must accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the league in regard to its military, naval and air forces and armaments.

Q. What is the position of the British dominions and India?

A. They are treated as separate members of the league.

Q. What is the position of the Monroe doctrine?

A. Nothing in the covenant is to be considered as affecting the validity of international engagements, such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe doctrine, for securing the maintenance of peace.

Q. What is the position of China?

A. China is a member of the league.

Q. What is the position of Germany?

A. Germany is not a member of the league.

Arbitration and Inquiry.

Q. What is the method of dealing with the disputes between nations?

A. It is agreed that if disputes should arise between nations, which cannot be adjusted by diplomacy, these nations will not go to war without submitting the dispute either to arbitration or inquiry by the Executive Council, and not then until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the recommendation by the Executive Council.

Q. Is there any distinction between disputes as to whether they are suitable or unsuitable for arbitration?

A. Yes: it is provided that if the disputing nations shall regard a dispute to be suitable for submission to arbitration, they will then proceed to arbitrate. If a dispute should arise which is not so regarded, and therefore is not submitted to arbitration, it is agreed that the whole shall be referred to the Executive Council to inquire into the justice of each nation's cause.

Q. How is a dispute to be submitted to arbitration?

A. By reference either to the permanent court of international justice, established by the league, or in accordance with any existing treaty which provided methods of arbitration.

Q. What course is to be pursued by the league as to other disputes, not submitted for arbitration?

A. An inquiry into the merits of the disputes is conducted by the Executive Council, followed by recommendations which the Council thinks just and proper for the settlement of the dispute, and which recommendations must be made within six months after the submission of the controversy.

ancient tower built by Caeser in 12 B. C. It seems that this Caeser person had a war of some kind and after he won it, he built this tower as a sort of souvenir of himself. We found a fort on another mountain (not the same day, tho) that Napoleon had defended at one time. They seemed to be rather attached to those mountains and were always fighting for them. I suppose that they hated to give them up, after climbing up there. The fort was a pretty old affair and had a French soldier as landlord or janitor or something. He makes a pretty good living by selling post cards of the fort at twice their value and by "mooching" cigarettes off one soldier and selling them to another soldier who has run out.

We were in Nice on several different occasions and found it to be a very beautiful city. The women there are more beautiful than the city and there seemed to be about two for every soldier. Most of the fellows had two, anyway. We saw a restaurant that looked good to us so we went in. We must have looked good to them too, because that meal almost broke us. Did you ever pay sixty-cents for a piece of pie? They called it pie but the French are artists at this camouflage stuff and no one would ever suspect that it really was pie. Going home on the tramway (or what we would call an interurban street car) we got within a mile of Monte Carlo and the juice went off. We had to be at our hotel by seven or pay for another meal out of our own pockets, so we got off and pushed the car over the hill and coasted into town. The motor man thought that was pretty good but he wouldn't let the brakes off enough to get up any speed so, rather than push it some more, we elected one of our fellows motorman. He, the Frenchman, said a lot of stuff in perfectly good French or Italian but it doesn't bother a fellow as long as he doesn't know what its about.

Our Oregon crowd had a pretty good stand-in at the hotel. Eddie and I could parley a little of their lingo and I guess they thought we were related to them in some way. We used to get lots of extras to eat and very good service. It is close to the Italian border and there are lots of Italians there. They can speak both French and Italian. The old man (the proprietor) told us that he had two brothers in America and we told him we knew where their fruitstand was in New York so we were 'bon comrades," after that.

We were all through the Prince's palace and the Museum in Monaco and thru the big Casino at Monte Carlo. They allow men in uniform to go thru during the morning when there is no gambling going on. I suppose they have heard of the fame of some of our soldiers a rolling the bones and are around a big table and bet that the little ball will stop on a certain color. A man must go color-blind in there pretty quickly because the Casino has been in operation for a good many years and the bank still sees strong. It is very pretty inside the Casino. The frescoing and decorating is very elaborate and some of the paintings are considered masterpieces.

We took a car up to the border one day and walked over into Italy. There is a M. P. stationed at the first Italian town and he tells you that you are through sight-seeing in Italy and are going back. He was right too. We sent some post-cards through the Italian mail and took a couple of pictures on our way back to Monte Carlo.

Came a day and we had to leave Monte Carlo. That was the only disagreeable thing about the trip. I'd like to be a permanent K. P. down there. The night we left, the moonlight was almost as bright as day and the effect on the water made it a hard compartment (you get in a side door and can't play all around the car like you do at home) which is meant to accommodate eight and lock the door so that no more could get in. There were six of us and all of us couldn't lie down on the seats, so I climbed up into the rack where we usually put our packs. It was a sort of a rope affair and just fit me when I stretched out. I had a good sleep and when I woke up we were half way home. I could tell we were someplace in this part of the country because it was raining and there was lots of mud.

Well, I'm not due for another leave for four months more and I say a little prayer every night that Ill never get it. When I get my next leave, I want to be able to tell my captain that I'm never coming back.

Lovingly,

PAT.

With each succeeding year the public appreciation of Overland cars becomes more prevalent as increasing numbers of people learn to know the ideal to which the vast Willys-Overland resources are dedicated. This ideal goes far beyond the production of an efficient Motor Car—even of an economically efficient motor car—it comprehends every factor, including Nation-Wide service facilities, that makes for the complete satisfaction of owners. Sales of the Overland Model 90 cars alone now number more than one hundred and fifteen thousand.

Some Hints on War Memorials.

Don't adopt any of the stereotyped form of memorials the country now is being deluged with from companies putting out standard "memorial plates or tables" on a quantity production basis.

Portrait statues of individuals are rarely successful. A good statue is such a rarity that committees should exhaust other possibilities before accepting this form of memorial.

Pay particular attention to the location of a memorial. It should be borne in mind that a work of art is not noticed when placed where crowds continually pass it.

A "novelty" or "orignial" memorial idea may appeal for the time being, but in the next generation may become a "burden and vexation."

If some city should adopt a memorial bridge as its type that bridge should be built to last a thousand years.

Community buildings offer a valuable suggestion many cities are proposing to undertake as their memorial.

Always consult expert advice before making a decision.—From the Report of the National Fine Arts Commission on the many proposed soldiers' memorials.

DEATH HAD OVERLOOKED HIM

Philadelphia, Pa., March 26.—Fearing that ever reckoning death had over looked him and oppressed by the fact that all his old friends were leaving him to answer the final call, Frederick Layton, one hundred years and three months old, hung himself to a bedpost. Layton, who came here from England forty years ago, was one of the oldest men in this section of the country, and was well known in this city.

In his younger days he was a trainer of race horses, and was a prominent figure at the British race tracks, where he hobnobbed, he claimed, with King Edward, at that time Prince of Wales. The centenarian attempted suicide a year ago but failed. Several months ago the neighborhood gave a large entertainment in his honor and presented him with a $1,400 purse.

Where Chicks Get Lime for Bones.

From the Boston Transcript.

Where the little chick in the egg gets the lime with which to form its skeleton has been a puzzle to investigators for the reason of the very small quantity of lime in the egg at any time. It has been figured that only about half of 1 per cent of the weight of the egg is lime, and it has been claimed that the bones of the chick contain more lime than there is in the whole egg, which if true would be an anomaly, inasmuch as the egg is practically made non-receptive by its shell. Delezenne and Fourneau, in the Annales of the Pasteur Institute, have thrown light on the subject. Their investigations with eggs containing chicks show a continual increase of the lime content of the liquid of the egg while the unfertilized egg continues at the same constant figure, the experiments lasting through twenty-one days. These interesting investigations lead to the conclusion that the chick borrows lime from the shell in accordance with its need for this material in its bones. The shell is really a reservoir of lime, which by some unknown mechanism and following some unexplained law yields to the demands.

Plans to Teach School at 72.

Wenatchee, Wash., March 26.—Never too old to teach, is the theory of the Rev. B. T. Sharp, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, who, at the age of seventy-two years, has taken the examination for a school teacher's certificate. If he passes the examination he expects to teach school in this district.

Read Testament in 18 Hours.

Bellfontaine, O., March 26.—Members of the First Presbyterian church read the entire Bible in relays here recently. Forty-eight readers completed the New Testament between 4 a. m. and 10 p. m. The Old Testament was read by 130 members at their homes, each being assigned a definite portion.

The "Drive" Method of War Days Has Become National Institution.

One lesson which the American people have learned from the war is how to raise money from each other on a scale so staggering that if we really stopped to think about the size of the job we should sit down and weep in discouragement.

Selling Liberty bonds to one another and persuading each other to give up painlessly for the Red Cross, the "Y" and countless other good works has almost supplanted baseball as the great American national sport. A year of two before the war people gaped in open mouthed wonder at the so-called whirlwind campaigns by which three or four million dollars were occasionally obtained for some good cause. Now a single church denomination sets out to collect 80 million dollars for its missionary endeavors, and the announcement in the papers does not cause the flicker of an eyelash.

If anyone supposed that the peculiar methods employed during the war to raise money stopped automatically when the armistice was signed he is doomed to a delightful disappointment. I say delightful because the vast body of knowledge gained in the last few years on the subject of how to separate other people from their money for good causes was not lost when the fighting ceased. It is being applied at this moment to all manner of laudable purposes, and the possibilities in the way of getting money, both for philanthropy and business, are almost dizzying in their extent.

The influenza epidemic has made a lasting impression on school children. The following conversation was overheard in a grammar shcool in West Philadelphia, where the recent epidemic rather than orthography claimed prominence:

"Say, Bill, this 'flu' isn't anything new. Sir Waler Raleigh died with it."

"Aw, go on. He did not."

"Sure, he did. I'll show you. It's here in the history." He pointed a grimy finger o the sentence: "Sir Walter Raleigh's death was due to Spanish influence."

Terrifying Discomfort From Skin Diseases

Itching and Burning Eruptions Torture Victims.

Only those who are afflicted with Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas boils and similar so-called skin diseases can appreciate the real terrifying discomfort that comes from these disorders.

The constant plea of those afflicted is the oft-repeated question, "How can I find relief from this constant torture?" Not palliative, temporary relief that causes the terrible itching to abate for awhile, but real genuine relief that shakes off the shackles of the disease and restores the skin to its former healthy condition.

And temporary relief is the most that can be expected from local treatment, such as ointments, salves, lotions, etc., which is one reason why these diseases seem to hold on with such tenacity. It is not because they are incurable, but because they are improperly treated, that they appear to be so stubborn and so difficult to cure.

The real cause of the disease is a germ in the blood, which multiplies by the million, and sets up an irritation in some tender location of the delicate skin.

You must locate the headquarters of the disease germs, and cut off their base of supplies. The blood is saturated with them, and they will set up their attacks on the surface of the skin as long as they remain in the blood, no matter how much local treatment you take.

A million gallons of local treatment applied to the surface of the skin, will not eliminate the germs of the disease from the blood, and until they are eliminated your skin will never be free from the itching and burning discomfort.

If you want relief that is permanent, then take a treatment that goes right to the seat of the trouble and removes its cause. Such a remedy is S. S. S., the reliable old blood purifier that so thoroughly cleanses the blood, that every trace of disease germ is routed out, and a new supply of rich red blood is sent coursing through the veins.

S. S. S. has been used successfully in some of the worst cases of eczema and other skin troubles, and it can be relied upon to cleanse the blood of the last vestige of the disease. S. S. S. is also a splendid tonic and system builder, and it builds up and adds new vigor to the whole system.

Go to your drug store and get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day and begin the right treatment for skin diseases. Then write for free medical advice about your own case. Address Chief Medical Adviser, 107 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—(Avd.)

EXECUTOR · TRUSTEE · ADMINISTRATOR

THE PRESIDENT'S GRANDSON.

Youngster Has Big Hands and Yells Like a Comanche Indian.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 26.—The mighty, earth-swaying hands of President Woodrow Wilson are duplicated in the "paws" of the recently arrived Woodrow Wilson Sayre, grandson of the country's Executive. The young Sayre possesses the characteristic unusually large hands and long little fingers of his granddaddy.

This is the sole resemblance the Sayre youngster has to the President. With the hand's exception, he is a replica of his father, Francis B. Sayre, instructor in law at Harvard university.

The baby was born here in Jefferson hospital at the time when his distinguished grandfather was returning from France. At the time of birth the youngster Sayre was twenty-one inches in height and weighed eight pounds nine ounces. Abundant red locks adorn his noble brow. Like a regular youngster he can whoop like an Indian on the warpath. And does, too, according to Miss Ruth Swisher, Chambersburg, Pa., his nurse.

A little gold medal designed by S. F. Veiner and made in France, is the gift made by President to his grandson on his flying visit here recently. The medal is a memento of the battle of Verdun and bears in French the historic words of Marshal Foch: "They shall not pass." The reverse side of the medal bears an engraving of one of the Verdun forts and the child's full name and the date of his birth.

FOUGHT SIDE BY SIDE.

A Father and Son Respond to First Call for Volunteers.

St. Louis, Mo., March 26.—One of the few instances of father and son fighting side by side in France has come to light here.

John J. Speiman, who has been connected with the local post office for twenty-five years, responded to the first call for volunteers for overseas postal service. When Pershing took over the postal service of the A. E. F. Speiman, instead of returning home, joined the army.

Cotton During War.

A machine gun in operation will use up a bale in three minutes.

In a naval battle, like the one off Jutland, from 5,000 to 6,000 pounds a minute are consumed by each active warship.

It takes more than 20,000 bales a year to provide absorbent cotton to staunch and bind the wounds of the injured.

One change of apparel for all the troops now engaged in the war represents more than 1,000,000 bales.

One hundred thousand bales will be required to equip our proposed aero plan fleet if cotton, as may be necessary, supplants linen for wings.

This country is now turning nearly 1,000,000 bales a year into explosives alone.

SCHOOL GIRL TELLS OTHERS

Nashua, N. H.—"I am nineteen years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would often faint and have to leave school. I had such pain I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and decided to try it, and that is how I found relief from pain and feel so much better than I use to. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—DELINA MARTIN, 29 Bowers St., Nashua, N.H.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, therefore is a perfectly safe remedy to give your daughter, who suffers from such painful periods as did Miss Martin.

The reason so many girls write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice, is because from their 40 years experience they have a store of knowledge which is invariably helpful.

A WAY TO TEST SWEETHEARTS

Simply Ask Him To Go To Church Is Scheme Adopted by Pastor.

Philadelphia, March 26.—A unique scheme for testing the love of a sweetheart of the male species has been devised by Rev. Roy Stover, pastor of the local Messiah Lutheran church. Its requirements do not ask the loved one to make the supreme sacrifice, or give up smoking, or go through other fiery ordeal, but simply asks of him to go to church.

"Bring your sweetheart to church," is the title of the campaign that the Lutheran clergyman has started to increase the membership of his Sunday school classes. A recent Sunday showed the effects of the scheme. Every woman, whether past seventy years, middle age or of the "flapper" variety, appeared at the services with a male. The Men's Bible Class was taxed to its capacity as a result.

All that is required to support the campaign is for the female churchworkers to demand of their mates, or mates-to-be, the promise of accompanying them to church. Knowing the fury of a woman scorned, a very few males are brave enough to resist or balk at the proposal. Meanwhile, Dr. Stover's congregation grows in proportion.

AN ARMY ROMANCE SPOILED.

An Unromantic War Department Prevented a "Beautiful Wedding."

Clinton, Mass., March 26.—Troop trains, like time and tide, wait for no man—not even when the prettiest girl in town, prize winner in several beauty contests, is waiting at the church to marry "him" before he is transferred to the South.

Which is why Private Edward T. Galloway, who has been guarding interned Germans here, will marry Miss May Houston in Atlanta, Ga., instead of in Massachusetts, as they had planned.

When the guards were ordered south from the internment camp, Private Galloway and Miss Houston made frenzied preparations for a wedding. The clergyman, the place and the girl were provided, but the prospective bridegroom did not have the time because of an unromantic War Department.

Before the troop train was out of sight bearing her irate bridegroom-that-was-to-be, Miss Houston had telephoned her relatives to pack up her traveling clothes and then took passage for Washington and from there to Atlanta, Ga.

Brooks Says Tanlac Has Overcome His Troubles—Feels Like A New Man.

"My wife obtained such satisfactory results from Tanlac that I tried it myself and I have gained ten pounds and feel like a new man," said J. W. Brooks, traffic superintendent for the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Dallas, Tex., and living at 1732 Hickory street, that city.

"When I began taking Tanlac," he continued, "I was suffering from a stubborn case of stomach trouble, the result of an attack of acute indigestion I had several years ago. I had an awful pain across my back, and was so nervous and worried about my kidneys that I could hardly sleep at all. I suffered from rheumatism in my legs, my feet would swell and I was tired and languid all the time. I was badly run-down, lost weight, strength and energy and none of the medicines I took did me any good.

"After using Tanlac for a short time I began to pick up and kept improving till now my rheumatism is all gone, the pains have disappeared from my back and my kidneys don't worry me like they did. I have a fine appetite and can eat anything I want without suffering at all from indigestion, my sleep is sound and restful and I get up in the morning feeling fine."

Tanlac is sold in Maryville by the Koch Pharmacy and by A. M. Colly, Conception Junctio , H. M. Lincoln, Pickering, and Carter Pharmacy, Burlington Junction, Mo., and in Barnard by Bear Drug Store, in Elmo by King Drug Co., and in Clearmont by Dr. W. H. Wiley.—Adv.

What Columbia, Mo., Boy Scouts are doing is told in the Columbia Missourian and is of interest to members of the local council here.

The plan to employ a part-time scout executive was approved by the Boy Scout Council at a meeting Thursday night. Coach H. F. Schulte will be employed during the summer months and will have charge of a ten-day camp in the Ozarks during August. The council has planned to make it possible for every boy in Columbia who wants to be a Boy Scout to go to this camp.

The scout fund which will be raised next month will be used to defray a part of the expenses of the camp. The budget as approved by the Council is as follows:

Executive's salary	$900
Camp fund	350
Camp equipment	300
Postage ,stationery typewriting	300
Incidental expenses	300
Work among negro scouts	350

The council approved the budget of $300 for camp equipment because a large number of army supplies, consisting of tents, cots, etc., will be sold at auction through the St. Louis ordnance department within the next two months and these articles may be bought at reductions. They will be owned by the local scout organization. The camp will be handled by the local organization without help from the national organization.

The campaign for the scout fund will be launched about April 6.

C. B. Miller is chairman of the finance committee and H. M. McPheeters, Frank L. Martin and Hollis Edwards are members of the publicity committee. Plans for the campaign will be announced later.

Mohawk vs. Mud

Your tires must fight the roads they travel. That's their job.

On most country roads, over gravel, macadam, rocks, ruts—the fight is hard.

We don't know where Mohawk tires will be used. We believe Mohawk users want a tire that will stand up and give a high mileage on any road. We believe they wish to go where they want to regardless of road conditions.

So from the beginning we have designed and built Mohawk tires not for easy work but for any work. We have built them with a tread so tough they will stand the abrasive action of macadam, cement, gravel and the cutting action of sharp rocks, fresh crushed stone, car tracks—with extra heavy fabric and an extra ply in most sizes to guard against fabric breaks caused by the hammering over rocks, cobbles, road holes and curbs—and with treads that hold secure against skidding, drive slipping or mud, snow, sand and wet pavements.

Where mud is prevalent we particularly advise the use of Mohawk Keaton Tread.

The best proof that Mohawks do stand up under any and all road conditions is the fact our records show that 85 per cent of all Mohawk buyers become permanent Mohawk users. A "fear weather," "good road" tire could never show such a record.

We have accomplished these results by the simple, logical method of using only the finest grades of rubber and fabric produced in the world—by using generous quantities of them—by avoiding all dangerous, cheap compounds and substitutes—by financing and conducting our business economically and efficiently.

Isn't this the sort of a tire you want?

ENID'S POSTER

By SOPHIA B. COHEN.

"Home, home, home," the rumbling wheels of the express kept up a noisy accompaniment to the riotous song of joy in Enid Blair's heart. After an absence of five years she was coming back to the little village where she was born and had lived until the lure of the city grew too strong for her to resist. Her heart beat quickly as she thought of the old folks and of Tom Marvin.

Tom Marvin—his name brought up long-forgotten memories. Would he be the same? They had been comrades in Millville and had faithfully promised to write to each other when she left. At first her letters had gone and come quite regularly. Enid was working hard, and soon her efforts at painting gained recognition. Then, with her triumphant success, came harder work and a gradual forgetfulness of the old Millville associations, and their correspondence ceased altogether. Tom also was busy. She heard vaguely that he was the life and soul of the movement on foot to arouse the sleepy, picturesque village of Millville and make a busy, enterprising town of it. She heard, too, that he had been highly successful and was now one of the leading citizens of the town. A cold fear clutched at her heart. Had he married?

Enid took a short vacation from her work and during the time met Tom only once. He had nodded to her a perfunctory greeting and they had passed on as casual acquaintances. The next three weeks were busy ones for Enid. The establishing of her studio left her no time to think of Tom's coldness. Finally the last touches had been added and a neat placard outside announced that "Miss Blair needs a model for a war poster." Many applicants came, but none seemed to be just what she wanted.

Even Uncle Billy, the town patriarch, offered himself as a model, and hobbled out of the studio very much hurt at having been firmly refused in spite of all his pleading. He could not seem to understand that what Enid needed was a young man, upright and strong, and poor old Billy was almost ninety and bent double with rheumatism.

After a month of anxious waiting, Enid despaired and had almost decided to go back to the city, where she could easily obtain a model at an hour's notice. Then, at the beginning of the fifth week, as Enid was just starting to pack, Tom Marvin walked in with the placard under his arm. Enid dropped the box she was holding and stared.

"Er—Miss Blair," he began awkwardly. "You need a model; maybe I will do?"

"Let me see," she said, deliberately, and appraised him with cold professional calm while he squirmed under her impersonal gaze.

"Yes, you'll do, Mr. Marvin," she said briskly, and Tom felt strangely, unreasonably elated.

The sittings began immediately, and were a source of pain and joy to them both. Tom thought Enid looked prettier than ever in her long smock as she bent her fair head critically this way and that to observe the effect of the poster, but he could not break down the barrier of reserve that stood between them. And Enid could not but notice how strong and manly Tom had grown. So the sittings went on. They spoke of many things, but never of that which lay nearest the hearts of both. The poster grew, and the splotches of color took on definite form. Enid saw with joy that it was far exceeding her anticipation, and in her mind attributed this to her inspiring model.

Finally the poster was done. Tom sat dully for a moment when he realized that there were to be no more sittings. Then a happy thought came to him.

"Will you sell that poster to me?" he asked.

The abrupt words brought Enid out of her reverie. She looked at him in bewilderment.

"Will you sell that poster to me?" he repeated.

"But I intended to donate it for the drive next week," she faltered.

Then she suddenly realized that she would see him no more after she left Millville. Why not keep the poster as a remembrance?

"No, I won't sell it to you," she added somewhat fiercely.

"Why?" He stepped nearer.

Enid could keep the tears back no longer.

"Can't you understand?" she sobbed.

He did understand, and she was in his arms immediately.

"Enid, do you mean—?" A stifled "yes" from his shoulder told him all he wished to know. There was no need of explanations.

The next week a wonderful poster was donated for the drive in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin. There was no need of keeping it now, for Enid had Tom forever, and as for him, why she could paint innumerable pictures of him any time.

Mine Tungsten in Australia.

Australia is second in importance among British territories producing tungsten ores. In Queensland many of the principal mines have quite recently been acquired by one of the largest of the concerns which have established tungsten reduction plants in Great Britain since the war, and the event appears to promise a new era of progress for this branch of mining in Queensland. Wolfram is mined in New South Wales and Victoria, while important quantities of scheelite, another ore of tungsten, are obtained in New Zealand and in Tasmania.

France's "Sacred Road."

The French government is arranging for the construction of a "sacred road" 400 miles long, from the coast of Flanders to Alsace. It is proposed that this road should follow, as far as may be found practical, the actual line on which the contending armies faced each other for three years.

In the countless woods through which this road will ultimately pass will be found the beautifully tended graves of those who have given their lives for their country.

SOME COMFORT FOR "SMOKE"

Company's Pet Assured of Good Qualities, Though He Wasn't Equal to Fighting Monkeys.

Three companies of colored engineers at a big medical supply depot somewhere in southern France have three mascots of which they think the world. One is Bobo, the baboon. One is Smoke, a little black French dog. One is Peoria, a lil'l yaller dog—a real O. D. brindle.

Bobo is no respecter of persons. He will climb all over his top sergeant with the unholy glee of a fussy inspecting officer and rough him to a fare-you-well. But his main penchant seems to be for pulling little dogs' ears, a trait bitterly resented by the guardians of Smoke and Peoria, but filling with delight his own adherents.

"Dey can't fahnd a dawg in all dis yere camp wot'll stain' up agin him," they chuckle, when Bobo swings his long arms and lopes after some mongrel that has strayed in.

Not so long ago a pathetic scene might have been witnessed on one of the company streets. Smoke was being carried along, in a cowering, timid state bordering on shell shock or mental collapse, by a great hulking stevedore, who was attempting to soothe him.

"Doan' yo' keer, Smoke," he crooned. "Dean' yo' bother a bit if folks laughs at yo'. Even if yo' cain't fight no B comp'ny monkeys, you's de best lil'l blaick dawg as ever wuz borned een Frainee, so yo' is!"

Mummies Show Arteriosclerosis.

Egyptian mummies show that arterio-sclerosis afflicted the ancient Egyptians, and it has been established that tuberculosis is at least 2,000 years old, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Mummies have revealed that humanity has not changed in its pathologic reactions in fifty centuries at least.

"It is illuminating to realize that in spite of the fact that the ancient Egyptians led lives of ease, had no tobacco, and did not overindulge in meat eating, their arteries degenerated practically in the same way as our own."

Our Want Ads. work like a charm.

As It Sounded.

From the Indianapolis News.

A young woman teacher in the Peru, Ind., high school had a vision of losing her job because of a violent protest lodged against her by a patron. The teachers were at a meeting when the protest came up. The patron accused the teacher of calling her boy a "scurvy elephant." The teacher was dumfounded when she heard the charge, and could not recall making any such remark. The corps of teachers went to work to attempt to unravel the mystery. Finally it was solved. The teacher had told the boy "he was a disturbing element."

Yanks Tested Water With Frogs.

From the St. Louis Republic.

Benton, Ill.—Soldiers returning here from the battle fields of France tell how they used frogs to find out whether or not water in wells and pools was fit to drink in territory that had been occupied by the German armies. Whenever the soldiers came to a pool of water, they put in frogs. If the frogs stayed in the water it was fit to drink, but if they swam for the sides of the pool, or died, the water was polluted. The country was full of frogs and the men had no trouble in testing the water.

The Effect of Gas.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A German officer, taken captive, complained that nothing could stop the American negro troops. They were not afraid of shells, they defied the flame projectors, they advanced thru fusillades of the machine guns of 280 to 300 bullets a minute.

"How about the gas?" someone said to the German.

"Gas?" replied the captive Hun. "It was no use to turn on the gas. It merely blackened their faces and frizzled their hair, and they came on just the same!"

In Africa a crop of the blackest, curliest, closest hair imaginable makes a girl the belle of the kraal, especially if she be plump, with piggy eyes, thick lips, a nose like an India rubber shoe, and a skin that shines like a cooking stove.

CAN'T TELL WHICH IS WHICH.

Short Skirts Make it Impossible to Tell Mothers from Daughters.

Kansas City, Mo., March 26.—"You can't always tell the mothers from the daughters," says R. B. Cook, superintendent of Recreation for the Board of Public Welfare.

Mr. Cook was inspecting a public dance, when he saw a young woman dancing. The law prohibits girls under seventeen from dancing a public dance. Calling her aside he informed her of the rule.

"Let me show you something, Mr. Cook," was her answer. Taking him to a corner of the hall, where two children were playing, she said: "The older is eight years old. He is caring for his younger brother. Come here, John."

"Yes, mother," replied John in an obedient tone.

"Excuse me," muttered Mr. Cook as he backed away.

"But how is a man to judge ages with all these short skirts and bobbed hair?" mused Mr. Cook as he walked away.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel — are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

ARE SMALL IN COMPARISON

Columbia, Mo., March 26.—Although the University of Missouri is in the front rank of the great universities, its annual appropriations are small in comparison with those made by some of the neighboring states for their universities. BUSINESS TIPS FROM A WOMAN

Chicago, March 25.—While some women may palpitate with joy over the latest divorce scandal, dig deep into the lovelorn columns of the newspapers and pore long and often over the women's page, Miss Lilly M. Hansen, Chicago's only woman bank cashier, passes up this brand of "trifling light reading," feverishly scans the stock and market reports, devours every word on the daily financial page and "gets more fun out of watching the stocks jump up and down."

In ten years Miss Hansen has come up from stenographer to one of the chief executives of the Kimbell State bank, with full charge of the office and full responsibility for all the bank's securities.

Here are a few of the tips Miss Hansen volunteers for the girl who wishes to be a success in business:

Never lose your temper. Be courteous to everybody. Swallow your pride when rudely reminded that you are holding down a man's job. Never get angry. And when your judgment is questioned by a man, smile sweetly but say nothing.

"I have your letter in regard to obtaining three used German cannons for Nodaway county.

"I have received a number of requests similar to yours from various section in Missouri. In taking these matters up with the Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, I have been informed that no arrangement has yet been made for the distribution of war trophies, other than a few of these trophies which have been turned over to the next Liberty Loan Campaign people which will be used as prizes in Liberty Loan work.

"The proper mode of procedure is for you to file your application for these trophies with the Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance. It will be given consideration at the proper time."

FIRST TO SUGGEST LEAGUE

C. C. Allen of Atlanta, Ga., Claims the Honor for Presenting Plan of Society of Nations.

Atlanta, Ga., March 26.—C. C. Allen, a pattern maker in a local foundry, claims the honor of first suggesting the plan of a League of Nations. His plan was printed in a St. Petersburg paper and copies sent to President Wilson, Henry Ford, former President W. H. Taft, members of the House and Senate and others.

Mr. Allen says there had been no newspaper discussion of the league prior to the plan mailed out, but soon afterward many leading papers took the proposition up, and most of them gave him credit for proposing the league. He points out that the constitution of the League of Nations follows the line of his proposal for an international government, which included an international constitutional convention, each nation determining its own delegates; noninterference of the international government in the internal affairs of a nation unless it is unable to sustain a stable government; all matters arising between nations that can not be settled by the international code of laws by diplomatic means to be referred to the international congress and its decision to be final.

The suggestion also included a plan for an international army and navy to enforce the decisions of the league, and the abandonment of all forts and means of offense and defense by the individual powers.

Miss Helen Dragoo received a big box of oranges and other fruit this morning from California, a gift from her grandmother, Mrs. A. J. Strong, who is spending the winter out there.

BAD WEATHER KEPT NORMAL VOTE FROM BEING POLLED

LINCOLN ELECTS WOMAN

Miss Mamie Clardy Won Over Marcus Bradley—Returned Injured Soldier Beaten in Hopkins Township.

In the various townships yesterday the election was a quiet affair, the rain deterring country residents from going to the polls in large numbers with the vote lacking considerable of being normal. THE "BANK" HOT BROKE

Th following interesting letter telling of a visit to the famous Monte Carlo has been received by Mrs. W. P. Cummins from her brother Corp. P. L. Growney, with a motor transport corps in France:

ADV. M. T. C. PARK NO. 721, A. P. O. 721. February 19, 1919.

Dearest Sis:

I am on late duty again. If it were not for this night work, I don't know when I'd get my letters written. We have started playing indoor baseball at night, in a big aeroplane hangar and when you figure three nights a week for that and one night for going downtown and getting a feed, there isn't a lot of extra time left. I have time to write during the day but have found it impossible to write a letter when there are so many people buzzing around me.

Have been getting the Democrat-Forum regularly of late and enjoy it very much. I see that Joe Archer claims he isn't dead.

Returned last Saturday evening from my trip to Monacco and am back on the job again. It was almost like joining the army all over again. It was cold and rainy when we left Dijon, almost a sleet, and when we arrived in Monacca the following afternoon, there was a nice, warm sun, and flowers and palms, and ripe oranges, 'neverything. We got off the train and walked into the waiting arms of an M. P. I started back for the train, but he was a good fellow and only wanted to show us to our hotel. Get that? Our hotel! Big airy, clean rooms, overlooking the Casino Gardens and the Mediterranean. Four of us, all from Portland, were traveling together, and managed to get rooms in the same wing on the same floor. After we had shaved and washed (Say, it looked funny to see water running out of a faucet again) they took us down to the dining room. I'm rather hazy about that dinner but I remember two nice looking French girls kept taking away my plates and bringing me clean ones again. I was eating some cutlets and the girls were smiling and I said "Encore," and she brought me some more cutlets. That word is the most sensible thing the French say and the one that almost every soldier knows and uses. After we were settled in our hotel, the M. P. left us alone and for one week I forget that I was a soldier except when I looked at my uniform. One morning we would get up early (that is 7:00) and go off sight-seeing, and the next morning, we would sleep till 11:45. We took a good many pictures and will send you some when I have more printed. Our traveling limit was from Nice to the Italian border and we went the limit both way. We went out on hikes on several occasions and took in lots of interest there was an old deserted city on top of the mountain so we started out to of the mountain so we started out see it. I don't know who built that town up there. It must have been some jealous old crab with a pretty wife or some of the exclusive society people who didn't want to have to mingle with common folks, A common person couldn't climb that hill twice a day. I don't know why they deserted it, probably fell off the mountain and didn't have the heart to climb it again. We found lots of other things up there; an

LET VALUATIONS ALONE

Jefferson City, March 26.—Senator McKnight of Gentry, took a hard fall oats of office last year it would not the state board of equalization yesterday. He said that they had violated their oaths of office last year when they cut down the assessment of the real estate and personal property of the state some 2 billion dollars.

The thrust at the board was made during a rambling debate over amendments to the income tax bill. Senator Green of Kansas City, had offered an amendment making every income subject to an annual state tax of one per cent. The amendment was doubtless offered for the purpose of killing the bill, as the Kansas City senator had previously failed to have the tax stand where it is today, one-half of one per cent on incomes of $2,000 and more.

In speaking in opposition to the amendment Senator McKnight said that if members of the state board of equalization had not violated their oaths of office last year it wiuld not now be necessary for the legislature to be considering the taxation of small incomes.

"Does the senator from Gentry mean to tell the senate that members of the state board of equalization deliberately violated their oats of office?" asked Senator McCullough of Knox.

"I do," replied Senator McKnight. "I have heard," he continued, "that three members of the board expect to run for office next year. I hope they will be forced to run on the records they have made. The returns of the assessors of this year's taxes are now in the hands of the state tax commission. I am informed that the total values are approximately what they were last year before the board reduced them some two billion dollars. If the valuations are left alone, there will be ample revenue to meet every demand on the state notwithstanding the loss of about three million dollars of dramshop revenue, and meantime, we need not pass a single revenue producing bill."

No names were mentioned by Senator McKnight. Everyone, however, interpreted his remarks to be aimed at Attorney General McAllister, Secretary of State Sullivan and State Treasurer Middelkamp.

RIOTS IN HUNGARY

100 ARE KILLED IN STREET FIGHTING IN BUDAPEST

CZECHS INVASION IS ON

London, March 26.—One hundred men were killed in violent street fighting in Budapest, according to Vienna advices. Plots are reported from other Hungarian cities. In the capital Bolshevist mobs overcame the garrison and massacred many, plundering the shops and stores of valuable stocks. Afterward Budapest was isolated and the fate of the Allied mission sent to investigate conditions there is unknown. Czech troops began an invasion of Hungary and occupied Raab, said a Central News dispatch from Vienna today.

Count Carolyi, former head of the Hungarian government has been assassinated at Prague, it was reported today. A Central News dispatch from Copenhagen reported that Count Karolyi had been arrested.

Berlin, March 26.—The Bolshevik movement in Hungary is spreading toward Germany. Italian troops under General Ficciona, are reported on the move in Hungary and have occupied Pressburg.

Basel, March 26.—Martial law was proclaimed throughout Bohemia today as a result of the Bolshevist movement in Hungary. The government is mobilizing five classes of Bohemiaan reservists for a campaign against the Hungarian Bolsheviki.

DEMOBILIZATION HOPE OF WETS.

Liquor Interests Expect War Time Prohibition to Be Cut Short.

Washington, March 26.—Rapid demobilization of the army and the early return of President Wilson give rise to hopes on the part of some "wets" that war time prohibition can be avoided, or at least cut short. Under the law war time prohibition becomes effective July 1, and continues during demobilization.

The "wets" hope the army will get down to the peace time figure before constitutional prohibition goes into effect next January. The termination of the demobilization period some time this fall would give a few months' interval during which the breweries and saloons of the Nation would have an opportunity to reopen.

WILSON FINDS ORIGINAL PROGRAM IS NOW IMPOSSIBLE

TRYING TO AVOID DELAY

Hurry to Complete General Document to Secure Peace Between the Allies and Al-Central Powers.

Paris, March 26.—Realizing that it is practically impossible to carry the fight for the confirmation of sure treaties with Germany and Austro-Hungary President Wilson is now understood to be working for the completion of the general document to secure peace between the Allies and the all-central powers. Already substantial progress has been made, it is announced. Many questions involve the all-German alliance of nations making it impossible to draw up a treaty which could be subscribed to by the Central powers.

A change in the original draft following the meeting of President Wilson and Premiers Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando, at which confidential reports on the Hungarian situation were submitted. It is officially declared in British and American circles here there is no reason to assume that the change will entail any great delays.

Washington, March 26.—More rapid progress than appears on the surface is being made by the peace conference. This was the message received by executive officers of the White House from a member of the President's party today.

Legislaton embodying this program is being whipped into shape by Senator Townsend and Representative Stevenson who are slated for the respective chair manships of the senate and house committees.

Funds to meet the April 1 requirements will be advanced to the railroads under federal control by the war finance corporation, the secretary announced today.

Catechism of Proposed League of Nations, Making Clear the Points of the Great World Peace Plan

The following catechism of the Proposed League of Nations is taken from the St. Louis Republic. The plan to enforce world peace is the biggest subject of the day—in fact, the biggest of a generation. It is important that every citizen should be thoroughly familiar with the details of the constitution of the League of Nations. The league constitution itself may not be clear to persons not in the habit of reading instruments of this character, but there is no reason why a person reading the appended catechism should not obtain a fairly good idea of the League of Nations, its plan and its purpose.

Purposes.

Q. What is the proposed League of Nations?

A. An association of self-governing nations, formed to promote international peace.

Q. Is it proposed to create a superstate, or world federation?

A. No; an association deriving its powers and functions from common counsel, resting upon the common judgment of mankind.

Q. How is it proposed to attain its objects?

A. By establishing open, just and honorable relations between nations; by promoting clear understandings of international law as the actual rule of conduct among governments, and by developing a scrupulous respect for all treaty obligations.

Membership.

Q. What steps have been taken to establish such a league?

A. Representatives of fourteen nations, sitting in the preliminary Peace Conference, have subscribed to a covenant which embodies the constitution of the league.

Q. What other nations are to be invited to adhere to the covenant?

A. Neutral nations, qualified for membership, to be named in the protocol to the covenant.

Q. How can other nations be admitted to membership?

A. By the assent of two-thirds of all the nations, members of the league.

Q. What qualifications are necessary?

A. All member states must be self-governing countries, and able to give effective guarantees of their sincere intention to observe international obligations, and accept the principles of the league with reference to naval and military forces and armament.

Organization.

Q. How is the league to be organized?

A. By a body of delegates, in which all members shall have one vote but not more than three representatives; by an Executive Council, comprising representatives of the United States, Great Britain France, Italy and Japan, together with four others, representatives of other states; by establishing permanent commissions, and a permanent court of international justice.

Q. What permanent commissions are to be established?

A. 1—A permanent commission upon armament, and military and naval questions generally.

2—A permanent bureau of labor, to to endeavor to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labor throughout the world.

3—A commission to receive and examine reports of powers entrusted with trusteeship over territory treated as mandatories.

4—All existing international bureaus such as the International Bureau of the Postal Union, are to be placed under the control of the league.

Armaments.

Q. What principle is to be accepted affecting naval and military forces and armaments?

A. It is proposed that nations joining the league should recognize the principle "that the maintenance of peace will require the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety, and the enforcement by common action of international obligations, having special regard to the geographical situation and circumstances of each state.

Q. How is it proposed that this principle shall become effective?

A. The Executive Council shall determine and recommend for the consideration of each government what military equipment and armament is fair and reasonable in proportion to the scale fixed in the general program of disarmament. Thereupon, each state, acting in its own sovereignty, and according to its own laws, shall consider the recommendations of the Executive Council, and determine how they can be made effective.

Q. It is claimed that the Executive Council has power to compel a nation to adopt the scale of armament agreed on in the world program. Is this correct?

A. The Executive Council can only advise and recommend to the member states such a limit upon armaments as would be proportionate to the rest of the world, in accordance with the scale fixed, taking into consideration national safety, international obligations, geographical situation, etc. Each state would consider these recommendations and adjust its plans in accordance with the will of its own sovereign functionaries. The only obligatory feature of the armament program is to this effect, namely: that if any nation adopts the recommendations of the league as to limited armaments, these armaments cannot be increased in later years, or the proportion changed without the consent of the Executive Council, of which the United States would be one of the five controlling factors.

Q. What great reform does the league propose respecting private manufacture of munitions and implements of war?

A. The Executive Council is to advise as to how the evil effects of private interest in such manufacture can be prevented, looking to the adoption of manufacturing for themselves war materials necessary for their safety.

Q. What other obligations are assumed by members of the league concerning their military and naval programs?

A. All members of the league agree that they will not conceal military and naval information from each other and that there shall be full and frank interchange of advice as to their military and naval programs.

Disputes.

Q. What principles are league members asked to accept with respect to disputes between nations?

A. That disputes shall be thoroughly discussed and that war, as a means of settling disputes, is a matter of concern to the whole league, which will take any action necessary to safeguard the peace of nations. In case a member of the league refuses to submit its case to arbitration or inquiry, the league will take action against it, and no member of the league is to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the recommendation by the Executive Council. In any case under the terms of which disputes cannot be submitted to arbitration or inquiry, the signatories will not go to war with any party which accepts the unanimous recommendation of the Executive Council. In any dispute submitted to the league, if the Executive Council is unanimous, except the votes of the parties to the dispute, the members of the league reserve the right to take such action as they shall consider necessary for the maintenance of right and justice. No member of the league is bound to accept a recommendation by the Executive Council, but if any member does accept it will go to war if the rest of the world has unanimously expressed an opinion, through the league, against the justice of the cause.

Arbitration and Inquiry.

Q. What is the method of dealing with the disputes between nations?

A. It is agreed that if disputes should arise between nations, which cannot be adjusted by diplomacy, these nations will not go to war without submitting the dispute either to arbitration or inquiry by the Executive Council, and not then until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the recommendation by the Executive Council.

Q. Is there any distinction between disputes as to whether they are suitable or unsuitable for arbitration?

A. Yes: it is provided that if the disputing nations shall regard a dispute to be suitable for submission to arbitration, they will then proceed to arbitrate. If a dispute should arise which is not so regarded, and therefore is not submitted to arbitration, it is agreed that the whole shall be referred to the Executive Council to inquire into the justice of each nation's cause.

Q. How is a dispute to be submitted to arbitration?

A. By reference either to the permanent court of international justice, established by the league, or in accordance with any existing treaty which provided methods of arbitration.

Q. What course is to be pursued by the league as to other disputes, not submitted for arbitration?

A. An inquiry into the merits of the disputes is conducted by the Executive Council, followed by recommendations which the Council thinks just and proper for the settlement of the dispute, and which recommendations must be made within six months after the submission of the controversy.

ancient tower built by Caeser in 12 B. C. It seems that this Caeser person had a war of some kind and after he won it, he built this tower as a sort of souvenir of himself. We found a fort on another mountain (not the same day, tho) that Napoleon had defended at one time. They seemed to be rather attached to those mountains and were always fighting for them. I suppose that they hated to give them up, after climbing up there. The fort was a pretty old affair and had a French soldier as landlord or janitor or something. He makes a pretty good living by selling post cards of the fort at twice their value and by "mooching" cigarettes off one soldier and selling them to another soldier who has run out.

We were in Nice on several different occasions and found it to be a very beautiful city. The women there are more beautiful than the city and there seemed to be about two for every soldier. Most of the fellows had two, anyway. We saw a restaurant that looked good to us so we went in. We must have looked good to them too, because that meal almost broke us. Did you ever pay sixty-cents for a piece of pie? They called it pie but the French are artists at this camouflage stuff and no one would ever suspect that it really was pie. Going home on the tramway (or what we would call an interurban street car) we got within a mile of Monte Carlo and the juice went off. We had to be at our hotel by seven or pay for another meal out of our own pockets, so we got off and pushed the car over the hill and coasted into town. The motor man thought that was pretty good but he wouldn't let the brakes off enough to get up any speed so, rather than push it some more, we elected one of our fellows motorman. He, the Frenchman, said a lot of stuff in perfectly good French or Italian but it doesn't bother a fellow as long as he doesn't know what its about.

Our Oregon crowd had a pretty good stand-in at the hotel. Eddie and I could parley a little of their lingo and I guess they thought we were related to them in some way. We used to get lots of extras to eat and very good service. It is close to the Italian border and there are lots of Italians there. They can speak both French and Italian. The old man (the proprietor) told us that he had two brothers in America and we told him we knew where their fruitstand was in New York so we were 'bon comrades," after that.

We were all through the Prince's palace and the Museum in Monaco and thru the big Casino at Monte Carlo. They allow men in uniform to go thru during the morning when there is no gambling going on. I suppose they have heard of the fame of some of our soldiers a rolling the bones and are around a big table and bet that the little ball will stop on a certain color. A man must go color-blind in there pretty quickly because the Casino has been in operation for a good many years and the bank still sees strong. It is very pretty inside the Casino. The frescoing and decorating is very elaborate and some of the paintings are considered masterpieces.

We took a car up to the border one day and walked over into Italy. There is a M. P. stationed at the first Italian town and he tells you that you are through sight-seeing in Italy and are going back. He was right too. We sent some post-cards through the Italian mail and took a couple of pictures on our way back to Monte Carlo.

Came a day and we had to leave Monte Carlo. That was the only disagreeable thing about the trip. I'd like to be a permanent K. P. down there. The night we left, the moonlight was almost as bright as day and the effect on the water made it a hard compartment (you get in a side door and can't play all around the car like you do at home) which is meant to accommodate eight and lock the door so that no more could get in. There were six of us and all of us couldn't lie down on the seats, so I climbed up into the rack where we usually put our packs. It was a sort of a rope affair and just fit me when I stretched out. I had a good sleep and when I woke up we were half way home. I could tell we were someplace in this part of the country because it was raining and there was lots of mud.

Well, I'm not due for another leave for four months more and I say a little prayer every night that Ill never get it. When I get my next leave, I want to be able to tell my captain that I'm never coming back.

Lovingly,

PAT.

Some Hints on War Memorials.

Don't adopt any of the stereotyped form of memorials the country now is being deluged with from companies putting out standard "memorial plates or tables" on a quantity production basis.

Portrait statues of individuals are rarely successful. A good statue is such a rarity that committees should exhaust other possibilities before accepting this form of memorial.

Pay particular attention to the location of a memorial. It should be borne in mind that a work of art is not noticed when placed where crowds continually pass it.

A "novelty" or "orignial" memorial idea may appeal for the time being, but in the next generation may become a "burden and vexation."

If some city should adopt a memorial bridge as its type that bridge should be built to last a thousand years.

Always consult expert advice before making a decision.—From the Report of the National Fine Arts Commission on the many proposed soldiers' memorials.

DEATH HAD OVERLOOKED HIM

Philadelphia, Pa., March 26.—Fearing that ever reckoning death had over looked him and oppressed by the fact that all his old friends were leaving him to answer the final call, Frederick Layton, one hundred years and three months old, hung himself to a bedpost. Layton, who came here from England forty years ago, was one of the oldest men in this section of the country, and was well known in this city.

In his younger days he was a trainer of race horses, and was a prominent figure at the British race tracks, where he hobnobbed, he claimed, with King Edward, at that time Prince of Wales. The centenarian attempted suicide a year ago but failed. Several months ago the neighborhood gave a large entertainment in his honor and presented him with a $1,400 purse.

Where Chicks Get Lime for Bones.

From the Boston Transcript.

Where the little chick in the egg gets the lime with which to form its skeleton has been a puzzle to investigators for the reason of the very small quantity of lime in the egg at any time. It has been figured that only about half of 1 per cent of the weight of the egg is lime, and it has been claimed that the bones of the chick contain more lime than there is in the whole egg, which if true would be an anomaly, inasmuch as the egg is practically made non-receptive by its shell. Delezenne and Fourneau, in the Annales of the Pasteur Institute, have thrown light on the subject. Their investigations with eggs containing chicks show a continual increase of the lime content of the liquid of the egg while the unfertilized egg continues at the same constant figure, the experiments lasting through twenty-one days. These interesting investigations lead to the conclusion that the chick borrows lime from the shell in accordance with its need for this material in its bones. The shell is really a reservoir of lime, which by some unknown mechanism and following some unexplained law yields to the demands.

Plans to Teach School at 72.

If he passes the examination he expects to teach school in this district.

Bellfontaine, O., March 26.—Members of the First Presbyterian church read the entire Bible in relays here recently. Forty-eight readers completed the New Testament between 4 a. m. and 10 p. m. The Old Testament was read by 130 members at their homes, each being assigned a definite portion.

One lesson which the American people have learned from the war is how to raise money from each other on a scale so staggering that if we really stopped to think about the size of the job we should sit down and weep in discouragement.

Selling Liberty bonds to one another and persuading each other to give up painlessly for the Red Cross, the "Y" and countless other good works has almost supplanted baseball as the great Ameriaen national sport. A year of two before the war people gaped in open mouthed wonder at the so-called whirlwind campaigns by which three or four million dollars were occasionally obtained for some good cause. Now a single church denomination sets out to collect 80 million dollars for its missionary endeavors, and the announcement in the papers does not cause the flicker of an eyelash.

If anyone supposed that the peculiar methods employed during the war to raise money stopped automatically when the armistice was signed he is doomed to a delightful disappointment. I say delightful because the vast body of knowledge gained in the last few years on the subject of how to separate other people from their money for good causes was not lost when the fighting ceased. It is being applied at this moment to all manner of laudable purposes, and the possibilities in the way of getting money, both for philanthropy and business, are almost dizzying in their extent.

Pueblo, Colo.—The first motor truck line from Pueblo to the Kansas state line will be established in a few weeks by T. H. Foley of the Foley Lumber Company. The first trucks will start operating as soon as weather conditions will permit. It is planned to operate the trucks on a regular schedule and to stop at all of the important freighting points between Pueblo and the Kansas state line. The proposed truck line will comprise more than one hundred miles of travel and will be one of the longest routes in this part of the country.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The influenza epidemic has made a lasting impression on school children. The following conversation was overheard in a grammar shcool in West Philadelphia, where the recent epidemic rather than orthography claimed prominence:

"Aw, go on. He did not."

"Sure, he did. I'll show you. It's here in the history." He pointed a grimy finger o the sentence: "Sir Walter Raleigh's death was due to Spanish influence."

Terrifying Discomfort From Skin Diseases

Itching and Burning Eruptions Torture Victims.

Only those who are afflicted with Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas boils and similar so-called skin diseases can appreciate the real terrifying discomfort that comes from these disorders.

The constant plea of those afflicted is the oft-repeated question, "How can I find relief from this constant torture?" Not palliative, temporary relief that causes the terrible itching to abate for awhile, but real genuine relief that shakes off the shackles of the disease and restores the skin to its former healthy condition.

And temporary relief is the most that can be expected from local treatment, such as ointments, salves, lotions, etc., which is one reason why these diseases seem to hold on with such tenacity. It is not because they are incurable, but because they are improperly treated, that they appear to be so stubborn and so difficult to cure.

The real cause of the disease is a germ in the blood, which multiplies by the million, and sets up an irritation in some tender location of the delicate skin.

You must locate the headquarters of the disease germs, and cut off their base of supplies. The blood is saturated with them, and they will set up their attacks on the surface of the skin as long as they remain in the blood, no matter how much local treatment you take.

A million gallons of local treatment applied to the surface of the skin, will not eliminate the germs of the disease from the blood, and until they are eliminated your skin will never be free from the itching and burning discomfort.

If you want relief that is permanent, then take a treatment that goes right to the seat of the trouble and removes its cause. Such a remedy is S. S. S., the reliable old blood purifier that so thoroughly cleanses the blood, that every trace of disease germ is routed out, and a new supply of rich red blood is sent coursing through the veins.

S. S. S. has been used successfully in some of the worst cases of eczema and other skin troubles, and it can be relied upon to cleanse the blood of the last vestige of the disease. S. S. S. is also a splendid tonic and system builder, and it builds up and adds new vigor to the whole system.

Go to your drug store and get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day and begin the right treatment for skin diseases. Then write for free medical advice about your own case. Address Chief Medical Adviser, 107 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—(Avd.)

THE PRESIDENT'S GRANDSON.

Youngster Has Big Hands and Yells Like a Comanche Indian.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 26.—The mighty, earth-swaying hands of President Woodrow Wilson are duplicated in the "paws" of the recently arrived Woodrow Wilson Sayre, grandson of the country's Executive. The young Sayre possesses the characteristic unusually large hands and long little fingers of his granddaddy.

This is the sole resemblance the Sayre youngster has to the President. With the hand's exception, he is a replica of his father, Francis B. Sayre, instructor in law at Harvard university.

The baby was born here in Jefferson hospital at the time when his distinguished grandfather was returning from France. At the time of birth the youngster Sayre was twenty-one inches in height and weighed eight pounds nine ounces. Abundant red locks adorn his noble brow. Like a regular youngster he can whoop like an Indian on the warpath. And does, too, according to Miss Ruth Swisher, Chambersburg, Pa., his nurse.

A little gold medal designed by S. F. Veiner and made in France, is the gift made by President to his grandson on his flying visit here recently. The medal is a memento of the battle of Verdun and bears in French the historic words of Marshal Foch: "They shall not pass." The reverse side of the medal bears an engraving of one of the Verdun forts and the child's full name and the date of his birth.

FOUGHT SIDE BY SIDE.

A Father and Son Respond to First Call for Volunteers.

St. Louis, Mo., March 26.—One of the few instances of father and son fighting side by side in France has come to light here.

John J. Speiman, who has been connected with the local post office for twenty-five years, responded to the first call for volunteers for overseas postal service. When Pershing took over the postal service of the A. E. F. Speiman, instead of returning home, joined the army.

Cotton During War.

A machine gun in operation will use up a bale in three minutes.

In a naval battle, like the one off Jutland, from 5,000 to 6,000 pounds a minute are consumed by each active warship.

It takes more than 20,000 bales a year to provide absorbent cotton to staunch and bind the wounds of the injured.

One change of apparel for all the troops now engaged in the war represents more than 1,000,000 bales.

One hundred thousand bales will be required to equip our proposed aero plan fleet if cotton, as may be necessary, supplants linen for wings.

This country is now turning nearly 1,000,000 bales a year into explosives alone.

SCHOOL GIRL TELLS OTHERS

Nashua, N. H.—"I am nineteen years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would often faint and have to leave school. I had such pain I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and decided to try it, and that is how I found relief from pain and feel so much better than I use to. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them now Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—DELINA MARTIN, 29 Bowers St., Nashua, N. H.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, therefore is a perfectly safe remedy to give your daughter, who suffers from such painful periods as did Miss Martin.

The reason so many girls write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice, is because from their 40 years experience they have a store of knowledge which is invariably helpful.

A WAY TO TEST SWEETHEARTS

Simply Ask Him To Go To Church Is Scheme Adopted by Pastor.

Philadelphia, March 26.—A unique scheme for testing the love of a sweetheart of the male species has been devised by Rev. Roy Stover, pastor of the local Messiah Lutheran church. Its requirements do not ask the loved one to make the supreme sacrifice, or give up smoking, or go through other fiery ordeal, but simply asks of him to go to church.

"Bring your sweetheart to church," is the title of the campaign that the Lutheran clergyman has started to increase the membership of his Sunday school classes. A recent Sunday showed the effects of the scheme. Every woman, whether past seventy years, middle age or of the "flapper" variety, appeared at the services with a male. The Men's Bible Class was taxed to its capacity as a result.

All that is required to support the campaign is for the female churchworkers to demand of their mates, or mates-to-be, the promise of accompanying them to church. Knowing the fury of a woman scorned, a very few males are brave enough to resist or balk at the proposal. Meanwhile, Dr. Stover's congregation grows in proportion.

AN ARMY ROMANCE SPOILED.

Clinton, Mass., March 26.—Troop trains, like time and tide, wait for no man—not even when the prettiest girl in town, prize winner in several beauty contests, is waiting at the church to marry "him" before he is transferred to the South.

Which is why Private Edward T. Galloway, who has been guarding interned Germans here, will marry Miss May Houston in Atlanta, Ga., instead of in Massachusetts, as they had planned.

When the guards were ordered south from the internment camp, Private Galloway and Miss Houston made frenzied preparations for a wedding. The clergyman, the place and the girl were provided, but the prospective bridegroom did not have the time because of an unromantic War Department.

Before the troop train was out of sight bearing her irate bridegroom-that-was-to-be, Miss Houston had telephoned her relatives to pack up her traveling clothes and then took passage for Washington and from there to Atlanta, Ga.

Brooks Says Tanlac Has Overcome His Troubles—Feels Like A New Man.

"My wife obtained such satisfactory results from Tanlac that I tried it myself and I have gained ten pounds and feel like a new man," said J. W. Brooks, traffic superintendent for the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Dallas, Tex., and living at 1732 Hickory street, that city.

"When I began taking Tanlac," he continued, "I was suffering from a stubborn case of stomach trouble, the result of an attack of acute indigestion I had several years ago. I had an awful pain across my back, and was so nervous and worried about my kidneys that I could hardly sleep at all. I suffered from rheumatism in my legs, my feet would swell and I was tired and languid all the time. I was badly run-down, lost weight, strength and energy and none of the medicines I took did me any good.

"After using Tanlac for a short time I began to pick up and kept improving till now my rheumatism is all gone, the pains have disappeared from my back and my kidneys don't worry me like they did. I have a fine appetite and can eat anything I want without suffering at all from indigestion, my sleep is sound and restful and I get up in the morning feeling fine."

Tanlac is sold in Maryville by the Koch Pharmacy and by A. M. Colly, Conception Junction, H. M. Lincoln, Pickering, and Carter Pharmacy, Burlington Junction, Mo., and in Barnard by Bear Drug Store, in Elmo by King Drug Co., and in Clearmont by Dr. W. H. Wiley.—Adv.

Columbia Council Hires Paid Executive and Plans for Big Camp in Ozarks for Boys.

What Columbia, Mo., Boy Scouts are doing is told in the Columbia Missourian and is of interest to members of the local council here.

The plan to employ a part-time scout executive was approved by the Boy Scout Council at a meeting Thursday night. Coach H. F. Schulte will be employed during the summer months and will have charge of a ten-day camp in the Ozarks during August. The council has planned to make it possible for every boy in Columbia who wants to be a Boy Scout to go to this camp.

The scout fund which will be raised next month will be used to defray a part of the expenses of the camp. The budget as approved by the Council is as follows:

Camp fund	350
Camp equipment	300
Postage ,stationery typewriting	300
Incidental expenses	300
Work among negro scouts	350

They will be owned by the local scout organization. The camp will be handled by the local organization without help from the national organization.

The campaign for the scout fund will be launched about April 6.

C. B. Miller is chairman of the finance committee and H. M. McPheeters, Frank L. Martin and Hollis Edwards are members of the publicity committee. Plans for the campaign will be announced later.

Mohawk vs. Mud

Your tires must fight the roads they travel. That's their job.

On most country roads, over gravel, macadam, rocks, ruts—the fight is hard.

On some roads, city asphalt for example, the fight is comparatively easy. High milage records under easy conditions mean little or nothing.

We don't know where Mohawk tires will be used. We believe Mohawk users want a tire that will stand up and give a high mileage on any road. We believe they wish to go where they want to regardless of road conditions.

So from the beginning we have designed and built Mohawk tires not for easy work but for any work. We have built them with a tread so tough they will stand the abrasive action of macadam, cement, gravel and the cutting action of sharp rocks, fresh crushed stone, car tracks—with extra heavy fabric and an extra ply in most sizes to guard against fabric breaks caused by the hammering over rocks, cobbles, road holes and curbs—and with treads that hold secure against skidding, drive slipping or mud, snow, sand and wet pavements.

Where mud is prevalent we particularly advise the use of Mohawk Keaton Tread.

The best proof that Mohawks do stand up under any and all road conditions is the fact our records show that 85 per cent of all Mohawk buyers become permanent Mohawk users. A "fear weather," "good road" tire could never show such a record.

We have accomplished these results by the simple, logical method of using only the finest grades of rubber and fabric produced in the world—by using generous quantities of them—by avoiding all dangerous, cheap compounds and substitutes—by financing and conducting our business economically and efficiently.

Isn't it reasonable to believe that such methods must produce a tire much above the ordinary?

Isn't this the sort of a tire you want?

ENID'S POSTER

By SOPHIA B. COHEN.

"Home, home, home," the rumbling wheels of the express kept up a noisy accompaniment to the riotous song of joy in Enid Blair's heart. After an absence of five years she was coming back to the little village where she was born and had lived until the lure of the city grew too strong for her to resist. Her heart beat quickly as she thought of the old folks and of Tom Marvin.

Tom Marvin—his name brought up long-forgotten memories. Would he be the same? They had been comrades in Millville and had faithfully promised to write to each other when she left. At first her letters had gone and come quite regularly. Enid was working hard, and soon her efforts at painting gained recognition. Then, with her triumphant success, came harder work and a gradual forgetfulness of the old Millville associations, and their correspondence ceased altogether. Tom also was busy. She heard vaguely that he was the life and soul of the movement on foot to arouse the sleepy, picturesque village of Millville and make a busy, enterprising town of it. She heard, too, that he had been highly successful and was now one of the leading citizens of the town. A cold fear clutched at her heart. Had he married?

Enid took a short vacation from her work and during the time met Tom only once. He had nodded to her a perfunctory greeting and they had passed on as casual acquaintances. The next three weeks were busy ones for Enid. The establishing of her studio left her no time to think of Tom's coldness. Finally the last touches had been added and a neat placard outside announced that "Miss Blair needs a model for a war poster." Many applicants came, but none seemed to be just what she wanted.

Even Uncle Billy, the town patriarch, offered himself as a model, and hobbled out of the studio very much hurt at having been firmly refused in spite of all his pleading. He could not seem to understand that what Enid needed was a young man, upright and strong, and poor old Billy was almost ninety and bent double with rheumatism.

After a month of anxious waiting, Enid despaired and had almost decided to go back to the city, where she could easily obtain a model at an hour's notice. Then, at the beginning of the fifth week, as Enid was just starting to pack, Tom Marvin walked in with the placard under his arm. Enid dropped the box she was holding and stared.

"Er—Miss Blair," he began awkwardly, "You need a model; maybe I will do?"

Enid thought she detected a twinkle of laughter through his diffidence, and immediately regained her composure.

"Let me see," she said, deliberately, and appraised him with cold professional calm while he squirmed under her impersonal gaze.

"Yes, you'll do, Mr. Marvin," she said briskly, and Tom felt strangely, unreasonably elated.

The sittings began immediately, and were a source of pain and joy to them both. Tom thought Enid looked prettier than ever in her long smock as she bent her fair head critically this way and that to observe the effect of the poster, but he could not break down the barrier of reserve that stood between them. And Enid could not but notice how strong and manly Tom had grown. So the sittings went on. They spoke of many things, but never of that which lay nearest the hearts of both. The poster grew, and the splotches of color took on definite form. Enid saw with joy that it was far exceeding her anticipation, and in her mind attributed this to her inspiring model.

Finally the poster was done. Tom sat dully for a moment when he realized that there were to be no more sittings. Then a happy thought came to him.

"Will you sell that poster to me?" he asked.

The abrupt words brought Enid out of her reverie. She looked at him in bewilderment.

"Will you sell that poster to me?" he repeated.

"But I intended to donate it for the drive next week," she faltered.

Then she suddenly realized that she would see him no more after she left Millville. Why not keep the poster as a remembrance?

"No, I won't sell it to you," she added somewhat fiercely.

"Why?" He stepped nearer.

Enid could keep the tears back no longer.

"Can't you understand?" she sobbed.

He did understand, and she was in his arms immediately.

"Enid, do you mean—?" A stifled "yes" from his shoulder told him all he wished to know. There was no need of explanations.

The next week a wonderful poster was donated for the drive in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin. There was no need of keeping it now, for Enid had Tom forever, and as for him, why she could paint innumerable pictures of him any time.

Tourist Department Hostess.

The tourist department of the Twentieth Centuy club was hostess to the entire club and a few other guests at an open meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Elks club when Mr. C. Edwin Wells, librarian of the State Normal and a former member of the U. S. legation to Santiago, Chili, gave an address on South America. The Tourists have been studying the South American continent and her people for the past year. Mr. Wells is not only a pleasing speaker, but had a great many things to tell of this country, which he learned in a seven years residence there and his address was highly entertaining. Preceding the lecture, Mrs. Harry Todd sang two songs, and afterwards, Mrs. Frederick Harvey sang the Chilean national hymn. CASUALTY LIST NEAR AN END.

Deaths and Injuries Since Armistice Will Be Reported, However.

Washington, March 26.—The last of the real American casualty lists in the world war now are being published in te daily newspapers and within the next few days the list will contain practically only the names of those who have died or been injured since the armistice. The names of the few given as killed in action are those of men for whom extended investigation had been necessary to establish proof of death.

Daily casualty lists will continue to be issued, however, indefinitely, because as l g as the expeditionary forces remain in Europe, or there is an army of occupation in Germany, there will be deaths of disetse.

Mine Tungsten in Australia.

Australia is second in importance among British territories producing tungsten ores. In Queensland many of the principal mines have quite recently been acquired by one of the largest of the concerns which have established tungsten reduction plants in Great Britain since the war, and the event appears to promise a new era of progress for this branch of mining in Queensland. Wolfram is mined in New South Wales and Victoria, while important quantities of scheelite, another ore of tungsten, are obtained in New Zealand and in Tasmania.

France's "Sacred Road."

The French government is arranging for the construction of a "sacred road" 400 miles long, from the coast of Flanders to Alsace. It is proposed that this road should follow, as far as may be found practical, the actual line on which the contending armies faced each other for three years.

In the countless woods through which this road will ultimately pass will be found the beautifully tended graves of those who have given their lives for their country.

SOME COMFORT FOR "SMOKE"

Three companies of colored engineers at a big medical supply depot somewhere in southern France have three mascots of which they think the world. One is Bobo, the baboon. One is Smoke, a little black French dog. One is Peoria, a li'l yaller dog—a real O. D. brindle.

Bobo is no respecter of persons. He will climb all over his top sergeant with the unholy glee of a fussy inspecting officer and rough him to a fare-you-well. But his main penchant seems to be for pulling little dogs' ears, a trait bitterly resented by the guardians of Smoke and Peoria, but filling with delight his own adherents.

"Dey can't fahnd a dawg in all dis yere camp wot'll stain' up agin him," they chuckle, when Bobo swings his long arms and lopes after some mongrel that has strayed in.

Not so long ago a pathetic scene might have been witnessed on one of the company streets. Smoke was being carried along, in a cowering, timid state bordering on shell shock or mental collapse, by a great hulking stevedore, who was attempting to soothe him.

"Doan' yo' keer, Smoke," he crooned. "Dean' yo' bother a bit if folks laughs at yo'. Even if yo' cain't fight no B comp'ny monkeys, you's de best li'l blaick dawg as ever wuz borned een Fraince, so yo' is!"

Mummies Show Arteriosclerosis.

Egyptian mummies show that arterio-sclerosis afflicted the ancient Egyptians, and it has been established that tuberculosis is at least 2,000 years old, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Mummies have revealed that humanity has not changed in its pathologic reactions in fifty centuries at least.

"It is illuminating to realize that in spite of the fact that the ancient Egyptians led lives of ease, had no tobacco, and did not overindulge in meat eating, their arteries degenerated practically in the same way as our own."

Our Want Ads. work like a charm.

As It Sounded.

From the Indianapolis News.

A young woman teacher in the Peru, Ind., high school had a vision of losing her job because of a violent protest lodged against her by a patron. The teachers were at a meeting when the protest came up. The patron accused the teacher of calling her boy a "scurvy elephant." The teacher was dumfounded when she heard the charge, and could not recall making any such remark. The corps of teachers went to work to attempt to unravel the mystery. Finally it was solved. The teacher had told the boy "he was a disturbing element."

Yanks Tested Water With Frogs.

From the St. Louis Republic.

Benton, Ill.—Soldiers returning here from the battle fields of France tell how they used frogs to find out whether or not water in wells and pools was fit to drink in territory that had been occupied by the German armies. Whenever the soldiers came to a pool of water, they put in frogs. If the frogs stayed in the water it was fit to drink, but if they swam for the sides of the pool, or died, the water was polluted. The country was full of frogs and the men had no trouble in testing the water.

The Effect of Gas.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A German officer, taken captive, complained that nothing could stop the American negro troops. They were not afraid of shells, they defied the flame projectors, they advanced thru fusillades of the machine guns of 280 to 300 bullets a minute.

"How about the gas?" someone said to the German.

"Gas?" replied the captive Hun. "It was no use to turn on the gas. It merely blackened their faces and frizzled their hair, and they came on just the same!"

CAN'T TELL WHICH IS WHICH.

Short Skirts Make it Impossible to Tell Mothers from Daughters.

Kansas City, Mo., March 26.—"You can't always tell the mothers from the daughters," says R. B. Cook, superintendent of Recreation for the Board of Public Welfare.

Mr. Cook was inspecting a public dance, when he saw a young woman dancing. The law prohibits girls under seventeen from dancing a public dance. Calling her aside he informed her of the rule.

"Let me show you something, Mr. Cook," was her answer. Taking him to a corner of the hall, where two children were playing, she said: "The older is eight years old. He is caring for his younger brother. Come here, John."

"Yes, mother," replied John in an obedient tone.

"Excuse me," muttered Mr. Cook as he backed away.

"But how is a man to judge ages with all these short skirts and bobbed hair?" mused Mr. Cook as he walked away.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel — are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

Columbia, Mo., March 26.—Although the University of Missouri is in the front rank of the great universities, its annual appropriations are small in comparison with those made by some of the neighboring states for their universities. Commissioner of Education, the annual appropriations for neighboring state universities were as follows:: Illinois, $2,453,371; Iowa, $1,785,179; Minnesota, $1,700,063; Wisconsin, $1,664,612; Michigan, $1,510,000; Ohio, $1,417,975; Kansas (U and Ag.
